Integration Planning Hierarchy

Configurable pattern. By default OnePlan treats Epic as the plan-level issue types and Task, Bug, Story and Sub-task as workplan items; deeper hierarchies are a configuration choice.

Two Ways to Connect

Jira Epics Integration

An Epic, or any issue type you designate, becomes a OnePlan plan. Child Stories, Tasks, Bugs and Sub-tasks flow into that plan's workplan.

Best for teams that manage work by issue type and want a plan hierarchy built from Jira epics.

- Plan level: Name ↔ Summary, Owner ↔ Assignee
- Parent Issues ID drives the OnePlan plan hierarchy
- Story Points, Estimates and Sprint dates pulled in

Jira Space Integration

An entire Jira Space (project) becomes a OnePlan plan, with its issues landing in the OnePlan backlog for planning and scheduling.

Best for larger or standalone Jira projects that align one-to-one with a OnePlan plan.

- Plan level: Name ↔ Project Name, Owner ↔ Lead
- All default mappings sync bidirectionally
- Project Types synced into a OnePlan choice field

What Syncs Out of the Box

Default field mappings shipped with the Jira Epics connector. Every field is remappable, and custom fields map through the same interface. Custom configuration available.

OnePlan field		Jira field	Direction	Notes
Plans - Epics
Name	⟷	Summary	Both	Required
Owner	⟷	Assignee	Both	Recommended
